

Four brands. Four ideas they could own.

I'm a digital marketer who likes finding the one true thing a brand can own, then building the campaign, the content and the channels around it.

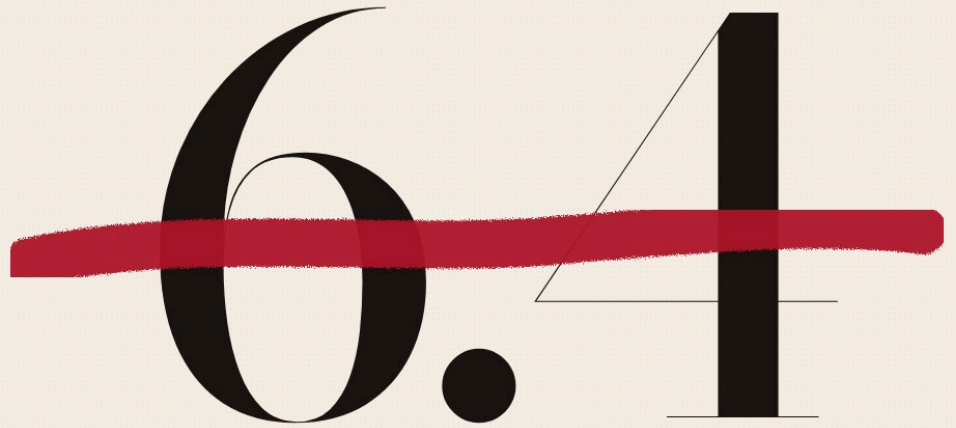

01

L'ORÉAL PARIS

Unrated. The brand that refuses to score women.

L'ORÉAL PARIS

SPEC CAMPAIGN

Unrated.

The beauty brand that refuses to score women,
and gives every woman a way to refuse it too.

CAMPAIGN BY AKSHARA SINGH

01 / 06

Young women get rated online every day. I took L'Oréal's 1971 tagline back to what it meant: a woman decides her own value, with an AR filter, ads and a public stand that cross the scores out in lipstick red.

ROLE

Audit, research, strategy, idea, social, copy, design

CHANNELS

Instagram, TikTok, Snapchat, OOH, PR, retail

02

DOVE MEN

Shower thoughts. Not skin thoughts.

Men don't pick a body wash, they inherit one. So the bottle becomes the medium: top-voted Reddit shower thoughts printed on the back, while the skin science sits quietly on the front.

ROLE
Idea, copy and design

CHANNELS
Pack, steam-reveal mirrors, creators, OOH

03

APPLE

Apple Offline. The first product you don't hold.

Gen Z wants to log off but has nowhere to go. Offline Mode on iPhone, free clubs in Apple Stores after hours, and an Offline Wrapped built to be shared. A case study told inside a phone.

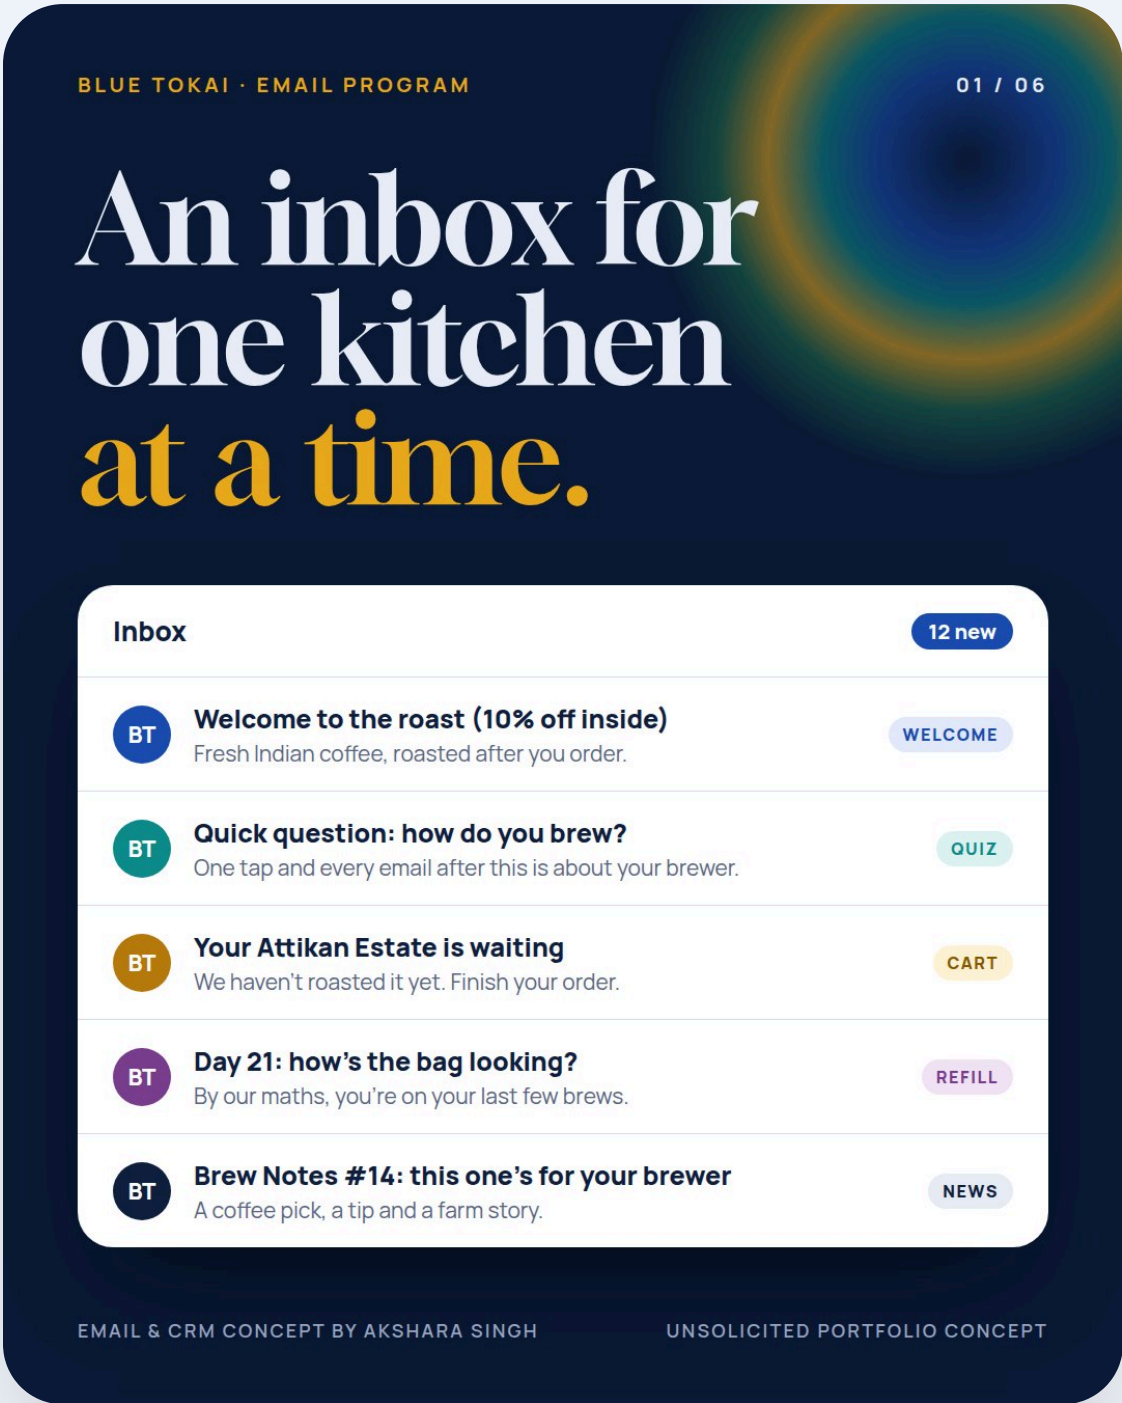

ROLE
Research, strategy, campaign, social, copy, design

AUDIENCE
Gen Z, 18–26

04

BLUE TOKAI COFFEE

An inbox for one kitchen at a time.

Five automated flows and a personalised newsletter, built as a clickable inbox. Subject lines that name the coffee, replenishment timed to the bag, and benchmarks to measure it all.

ROLE
Strategy, flows, segmentation, copy, design

STACK
Klaviyo-style flows, zero-party data
